HORIZONTAL BREAKS ~ ALPHA WAVES ~ COLOR THREADS

Music In Line is a track created with Isochronic tone breaking into alpha waves at various intervals as per the instructions by Parul Gupta.

~

Art in Line is an artwork with black threads depicting the isochronic tone & the colored threads depicting the change in tone.

An isochronic tone is a regular beat of a single tone that is switched on and off constantly in order to create repetitive beats often used in combination with binaural beats in the process of Brainwave entrainment. They can create sharp, distinctive pulses of sound, or low, humming sounds hence can be used without headphones; can play them through speakers.

Binaural beats are auditory brain-stem responses which originate in the superior olivary nucleus of each brain hemisphere. They result from two different auditory impulses or sounds, heard from opposite ears. This binaural beat is consciously heard as the human hearing range is from 20-20,000 Hz. Rather it is perceived as an auditory beat and theoretically is being used to coach certain brain rhythms from what is called the frequency-following response (the tendency for the brain to resonate at the frequency of an external stimulus).
